

Dionisio Preciado: Biobibliography

AMONG SCHOLARS UNJUSTLY omitted from The New Grove none more poignantly merits a biobibliographical article than Dionisio Preciado Ruiz de Alegria.

Born at Salvatierra, Alava province (Spain), January 19, 1919, he studied at various Capuchin seminaries in Navarra. After two years' army service as an enlisted man, he returned to ecclesiastical studies sponsored by the Capuchin order—professing in 1936. In December 1944 he was ordained a priest. From 1945 to 1949 he was organist of San Antonio sanctuary at Pamplona.

From 1949 to 1959 he was an organist in various Santiago de Chile churches. Meanwhile he studied composition and theory at the Chilean national conservatory. In 1959 the University of Chile made him licentiate in music (Licenciado en Ciencias Musicales). From October 1959 to May 1960 he resided at the Capuchin Gray Friars' Hall in Oxford, England. While there he wrote articles on electronic music published in the Madrid magazine Ritmo (números 341–357). Upon returning to Spain he continued as an organist until 1966. He won both first and second prize for villancicos in the 1962 contest sponsored by the Asociación de Belenistas of Pamplona.

He enrolled in 1966 at the Pontificio Istituto di Musica Sacra at Rome directed by Higinio Anglés. After four years' study, the Pontifical Institute in 1970 awarded him the doctorate in musicology and the licentiatehip in Gregorian Chant. Upon returning to Spain he spent his next years to the present in musical investigations, based until 1976 at Saragossa. From 1976 to 1978 he became the first to teach musicology at the Conservatorio Superior de Música at Valencia. In 1978 the Conservatorio Nacional de Música at Madrid appointed him to teach Folklore and Musical Paleography in the Department of Musicology headed by Samuel Rubio.

In 1976 the Spanish Ministry of National Education awarded him the title Profesor Superior de Composición Musical. In 1980 he competed successfully for the Premio Nacional de Investigación Musical. His award-winning opus, Doce Compositores Aragoneses de Tecla del s. XVIII (12 Eighteenth-Century Aragonese keyboard composers)—still in press in the summer of 1981—contains music, musical analyses, and biographies of José and Juan Moreno y Polo, Joaquín Nebra, José Larraz, Diego Llorente y Sola, Rafael Anglés, Joaquín Beltrán, Pedro Nuez, Gregorio Artal, Manuel Gascón, Joaquín Laseca, and Ramón Ferreñac. The Spanish Ministry of Culture is sponsoring publication of his prizewinning work by the Editora Nacional. In December 1980 the Spanish Musicological Society elected him director of its official organ started in 1978, Revista de Musicología.
